SOLVING LABOR QUESTION.

In effecting the present settlement of the mining difficulties in Southern Alberta, Hon. W. H. Cushing and Mr. L. McKenzie King have rendered a very valuable service, not only to this country, but to the whole of British Columbia. A prolonged strike among the miners at the present time would have been nothing short of a calamity. The whole business of the country would have been paralyzed, and this western country would have been left to the mercy of the eastern Canada. The miners have now been averted and the miners shall now go on producing coal and earning their wages, as well as supplying the industrial concerns and the railways with fuel. While the whole matter of the strike is being quietly discussed here, a committee, consisting of a practical board of arbitration for the settlement of such disputes.

In his work at Fernie Hon. W. H. Cushing is just giving another evidence of his sane and sound business ability. He has been most definitely without bias in favor of either side, and his counsel has been of the very wisest kind; he appealed to the good sense and good judgment of all parties concerned and did a great deal to bring about the present very satisfactory result. His announcement about the eight hour day came in good time, and no one need be doubtful where the legislature stands on this question at the recent session, but it was felt that any action upon such a question should involve an act of parliament dealing with the whole mining question, and before this was attempted it was deemed advisable to obtain the available information upon the mining question, for this purpose a commission will be appointed in a few weeks to take the necessary evidence throughout the provinces and present a report; to the legislature at its next session, which will be the basis of a general mining act, and it is already determined that the miners will be included in this act.

The Deputy Minister of Labor, W. L. MacKenzie King, belongs to no small credit also to the solution of the present difficulty. Since his appointment to his present position Mr. King has repeatedly demonstrated his peculiar fitness for the position he occupies, and he has discharged his duty as difficult as it may fall to the lot of a public officer with an ability and discernment that has made his name known throughout every part of Canada. It is rather remarkable that just seventy years ago, when Mr. McKenzie was attempting to settle political difficulties in Canada by a rebellion, while to-day his grandson and namesake, W. L. Lyon McKenzie King, is effecting settlements of industrial disputes by the method of arbitration in preference to the war-like method of strike.

When the Dominion Government appointed a Minister of Labor and established that department of the public service which they took one of the most important steps in the public interest that has been taken by any government in Canada. The disputes between capital and labor are the most serious that can happen in a country. Nothing can be more disastrous than a commercial war which destroes the productiveness of the masses and the wage earning power of the workers. The best result can only be obtained when the employer and the employee work together harmoniously. While their interests are identical in one sense they are the reverse in the question of compensation for the work done. The employer naturally desiring to secure help to the lowest possible wage while the employee is anxious to obtain the highest salary he can command.

Of late years these difficulties have been to a great extent overcome by employers recognizing that good men are well worth good wages and there has been on both sides a greater disposition toward fairness. But these difficulties still remain all settled and the Department of Labor has succeeded in settling a goodly number during the last few years, and in so doing has averted many strikes which would have been disastrous in their effect. This work has been only begun, and the Department of Labor is destined to be one of the most important in the Dominion government, and in its work there will be room for some of our best men to show that they are in solving some of the most difficult questions that confront the government at the present time. So far the work has been well done, and the new labor law passed at the present session of the House of Commons will be tested in the settlement of the coal difficulty. In this test the weakness of the law will be discovered, and can be amended at a future session of the House. The work of the conciliatory committee in this instance will be watched with a great deal of interest, and it is to be hoped that it will go far toward solving the labor difficulties in the Dominion of Canada, and will be the basis for future legislation of a similar character that will in the end obviate all possibility of strikes in this country.

THE REAL PURPOSE OF THE INSURANCE COMMISSION.

The public must not permit the politicians to divert their attention from the real purpose of the Insurance Commission. It is true that incidentally, certain difficulties exist in the public eye suffered from damages to houses before the Commission; but that was a mere by-product of the institution. His real errand was to investigate our insurance companies, to know what they were getting along under our present laws and system of government inspection, and to find out if there were any points at which we should have more law or more inspection.

The conclusion of the Commission was that we needed both more law and more power to enforce that law. They recommended that the Premiers of the great self-governing institutions of a conference on imperial affairs. No crisis has arrived in matters of empire, but, on the principle that the desire for frequent visits from the children to their parents is the best lessening, the motherland waits to hear the views of her children's representatives on family questions. An Indian Council is not generally desired, and each colony is busy developing its own laws, while the Indian wealth, but other means for strengthening the ties and easing the old mother's burden may be found practical.

The chief personalities at the conference include men of widely differing races and characteristics. Lord Elgin, the Colonial Secretary, who called the conference, is fortunate in that he is the son of one of the colonists, a fact of which he boasted more once. His birth occurred near Durban in 1849, during his term as Governor of Canada. His father, who was also the Earl of Durham, also of the visiting Premiers two personalities stand out as evidence of the high rank of the institution. These are Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, though a French-Canadian, is an expert in the politics of the British colonies, and General Louis Botha, Premier of the Transvaal, who was the first to take over the Government of a British colony within six years of a bitter rebellion. The success of the policy of Britain's colonial policy could be desired than the presence of these men, together with Premiers of the British race. Long before his arrival in England, Botha's newspaper began to work up a popular campaign for the Dutch Premier. General Botha was born at Graaff-Natal in 1863. He was a member of the Volksraad of the Transvaal and during the latter part of the war with Great Britain was commanded by the Boer, General Botha. As Prime Minister, Botha receives a salary of $4,000 a year.

The most remarkable personality is that of Dr. James Star Jameson, leader of the famous Jameson Raid. Jim is a native of Edinburgh, where he was born in 1853. His career is a remarkable one. He was a student at Edinburgh University, a man of splendid courage, a freedom from all fear, and a love of his friends. A penniless Scot, he became a broken invalid in search of health, but he had the strength of character and a leader of a mad filibuster rally that excited world-wide attention; a man of the people, he has risen to the position of the foremost political figure in South Africa, and is the friend and associate of the late Cecil Rhodes. After his election to the House of Commons in 1893, his influence grew rapidly, and he was made Minister of the Interior. As Prime Minister, Botha receives a salary of $4,000 a year.

President of the Australian Commonwealth, Hon. Alfred Deakin, in a man of striking features. He has a large head, a prominent forehead, and the finer tastes of a booklover. He shows no natural talents, but poetry, as well as metaphysics and bold letters. Mr. Deakin is now Minister of the Interior. He was first elected to the Australian Parliament in 1890, when he was elected to the House of Representatives. In 1903 he succeeded Mr. Edmund Barton in the Premiership of the Commonwealth, and was re-elected in 1904.

Sir Joseph Ward, the Premier of New Zealand, is justly entitled to his aggressive championship of the island's cause against the aggression of the United States. He has received his title during the visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall to the island of sociological experiments.

Sir Robert Bond, the Premier of Newfoundland, is a man of great energy. He has been a diamond digger at Kimberley, but since 1885 he has been a factor in the development of Newfoundland, having been a member of the Legislative Assembly, and having been a member of the Executive Council, ultimately becoming the Premier, possibly having met to guide.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The danger of the Peace Conference is that there are too many like Stead fighting for it.

We know of this kind of weather skidded on April 23. Apparently the weatherman is not up in slang.

The Alberta says the Calgary Herald is curbing itself in lambkin. The borrowing ways of that journal would suggest molestation.

Premier Whitney fancies himself a second Oliver Cromwell these days as ratifies on his broad toon of so-called political rights.

A Color Guard says Calgary is the most solid place in Canada. That did not prevent it from exploding a few days ago over the location of a new institution at Stratford.

Medical men in Boston have discovered a disease among the immigrants called ankylosis, dysentery. That should be cultured enough even for Boston.

FIVE PREMIERS AT CONFERENCE

The eyes of a world-wide empire have turned to Old London, where the Premiers of the great self-governing institutions of a conference on imperial affairs. Pepper And Parks On Stand

"Pepper and I slept the previous night over in Lookey's harness shop. I saw that the police had been there, so I did not go to the station. I was at home between five and six o'clock when the police came to see me. We had a drink together. He was playing cards with most of the old-timers. I was there most of the time. When he got up to have a drink, he said, 'I am going to see the constable and tell him that I am going to supper and left.' That was the last I heard of him. I was lost to the shack on Sunday morning, March 31st. It was about noon when I saw Peacock and Hounds were there getting their breakfast. Hounds was cooking and I was eating. We went to the shack. When we got back up town I had a couple of drams of whisky. When we got down out of his pocket. He then said he was going to get his breakfast at the Queen's. When we got again that day, Hounds' expression was that he had been to the Queen's. He had been to the Queen's about five minutes in the little time he had been up town. April 6th. We did not talk about anything in particular. This scratch on his face was the only scratch I noticed on his face. We had two drams that morning. I was in the Queen's about 10 o'clock, so I guess he was up town about 10 o'clock, before he went to the shack.

To Mr. Robertson: "I met Wood at the Jasper House that Sunday morning. I had been to the shack before we went to the shack. When we got back up town I had a couple of drams of whisky. When we got down out of his pocket. He then said he was going to get his breakfast at the Queen's. When we got again that day, Hounds' expression was that he had been to the Queen's. I was in the Queen's about 10 o'clock, so I guess he was up town about 10 o'clock, before he went to the shack.

Here followed a lengthy questioning by the defendant's counsel as to the position in which the body was lying at the time of his arrival at the shack. When Pepper left us to inform the police of the murder we agreed to meet at the Jasper. I guess it was my idea. We went to the Jasper. I told the constable that he was the police. That was the last I heard of him. I told the bartender of the Jasper.

That night he was at the Jasper. He was playing cards with most of the old-timers. I was there most of the time. When he got up to have a drink, he said, 'I am going to supper and left.'

THE WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Nations Producing Power Taxed to Limit. Broader Foreign Demands for Cereals.

New York, April 26.—R. G. Dun & Co's weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

World's cereals have again declined in trade, but reports have become irregular, some sections still completely quiet, while most despatches reflect the brighter results of tardy sunshines. Still, the cereals are the opening of the progress of the crops, while the cereal markets are responsive to the strong and increasing foreign demand. Manufacturers continue vigorously preparing for future delivery, and the opening of the season is reported at footwear factories, where spring and summer goods are in full contract, have not yet arrived.

A few small strikes are also reported, but in the aggregate a very limited part of the nation's producing power is involved, due to the scarcity of labor.

THE INTRODUCER OF IODOFORM

Fell into the Danube and was Drowned. Tragic Death of Prof. Moorehead.

Vienna, April 26.—Professor Albert Ritter von Moesigl Moorehead, the famous spiritual teacher of the Orient, died yesterday while walking on the bank of the Danube late in the afternoon. He was drowning and his body was found. He had consulted experts, but inquiries tend to prove that his death was due to drowning. He was subject to sudden fainting fits, due to calcification of the arteries, and it is believed that he fell into the river in the case of the C. P. R. v. the Ottawa Fire Insurance company.

The C. P. R. carried insurance in the Ottawa companies against the loss of his life, and the company which had the largest sum insured was the Ottawa Fire Insurance company.

RETURNS TO REGINA and What Was Formally on Bulletin.

Regina, Sask., April 26.—After an absence of 18 years, H. T. McPhillips has returned to the city, and is naturally very impressed with the change he has seen. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Jew, News reporter of weeks after Nicholas Flood Davison started the Regina Leader. McPhillips, though a member of the Globe staff, though Mr. McPhillips was on the mechanical staff, and worked with another old Globe man, Frank Oliver, McPhillips moved down the river on flat boats to Prince Albert and then to his Director and History of Saskatchewan, which was published in 1890. In 1890 he went East and has not been west of Winnipeg since that time now.
